Knowledge, Skills, and Abilities:

Your position as a Field Coordinator requires the ability to lead and develop students into quality fire practitioners for the future. As a Field Coordinator you set the example and challenge your students to “think outside the box” and to find value in every lesson they encounter during their 20-day session.

Question One:

Give your opinion on what makes a fire program successful to grow and how you would apply your leadership skills.

Question Two:

Describe how you can be effective in building a team, given the short timeframes at PFTC and diversity of personalities, to function effectively at conducting prescribed burns and maximizing learning.

Question Three:

What will you gain from serving as a PFTC Field Coordinator?

Question Four:

How do you build or maintain a learning environment when weather has prevented live fire opportunities? Give a specific example.

Question Five:

How do you deal with a trainee that is a distraction to the rest of the crew?

Question Six:

Describe how suppression personnel and fuels personnel function or could function effectively together on a Unit.

Other Expectations:

The Field Coordinators are a critical element to the success of PFTC. Field Coordinators must be fluid, productive and efficient individuals who can respond to rapidly changing conditions. Actual duty location may change weekly or daily and may be anywhere within the Southeastern United States. Lodging may be in bunkhouses, cabins, or motels. Some night and weekend work will be required. The main purpose of the Field Coordinator position is to facilitate a quality mentoring experience for the participants assigned to them and for the units hosting them. The positions are challenging and often viewed as opportunities for personal and organizational improvement. These positions are logistical and supportive in nature. Duties strongly parallel those of a Division Supervisor (DIVS).
